

Supplementary Material

A systematic study of anti-osteosarcoma mechanism of pH-sensitive charge-conversion cinnamaldehyde polymeric prodrug micelles in vitro

Jiapeng Deng,^{†,1,2} Qichang Wang,^{†,1,2} Huihui Xu,^{1,2} Guoqing Li,^{1,2} Su Liu,^{1,2} Yixiao Chen,^{1,2} Fei Yu,^{1,2} Weiqiang Yan,³ Hui Zeng,^{,1,2} Peng Liu^{,1,2}

¹ National & Local Joint Engineering Research Center of Orthopaedic Biomaterials, Peking University Shenzhen Hospital, Shenzhen, PR China, 518036.

² Department of Bone & Joint Surgery, Peking University Shenzhen Hospital, Shenzhen, PR China, 518036.

³ Department of Radiology, Peking University Shenzhen Hospital, Shenzhen, PR China, 518036.

[†] These authors contributed equally to this work.

* Correspondence: liupeng_polymer@126.com (P.L.); zenghui_36@163.com (H.Z.)

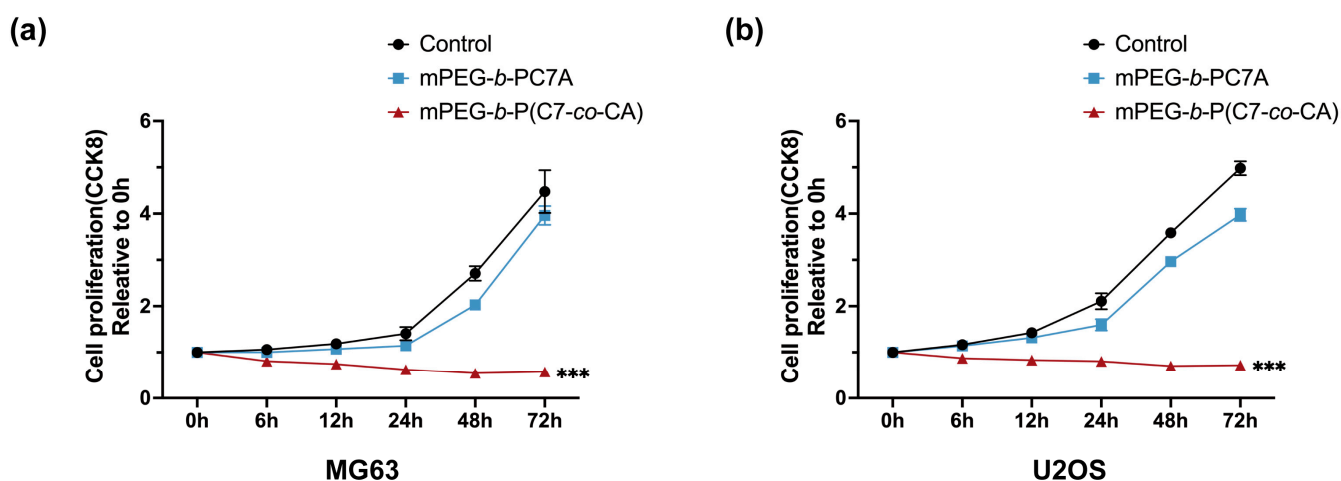

Figure S1. Effect of mPEG-b-P(C7-co-CA) micelles on the proliferation of MG63 cells (a) and U2OS cells (b) detected by CCK-8 assay ( $P < 0.001$, vs the control group).