Message from the Guest Editors

The study of nonlinear circuits and systems has played a crucial role in recent advances in microelectronics, with particular emphasis on analog and mixed-signal electronics, and power electronics.

The goal of this Special Issue is to gather original research papers as well as review articles that highlight the latest developments and breakthroughs in this area, with particular emphasis on multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary applied research.

Topics of interest for this Special Issue include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Cryptography and true random number generators;
- Hardware security and physically unclonable functions;
- Nonlinear signal processing;
- Integrated chaotic circuits;
- Power electronics and energy conversion circuits;
- Analog computing and memristor-based circuits;
- Nonlinear circuits for artificial intelligence;
- Nonlinear circuits for biomedical applications;
- Nonlinear control systems;
- Complex networks;
- Applications in telecommunication.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.
