Message from the Guest Editor

Lead by Dr. Cristina Núñez and assisted by our Topical Advisory Panel Member Dr. Victoria Gomez-Murcia (University of Murcia), this Special Issue will be centered on the neuroinflammatory aspects of mental conditions in a broad context, including biochemical, genetic, morphological or functional aspects, but also various interventions for their treatment that alleviate inflammatory processes in the brain. Continued research at the intersection of neuroinflammation and psychiatry will contribute to both prevent and provide precise diagnostic and therapeutic approaches to address neuropsychiatric disorders.
