Message from the Guest Editors

Protein translation as it occurs in modern cells is a complex process requiring coadapted interactions between multiple types of RNAs and proteins (RNAs: mRNA, tRNAs, rRNAs; proteins: elongation and termination factors, ribosomal proteins, tRNA synthetases), functioning under a set of rules resumed in the genetic code.

This Special Issue on the origins of protein translation welcomes experiment- and theory-oriented research articles and reviews about the above, and related topics, focusing on prebiotic and early life self-organization of any components of protein translation.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry & Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Inorganic Chemistry)
