Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue seeks to contribute to the existing body of knowledge on HL acquisition by providing new insights into the complex dynamics involved in the acquisition and maintenance of lesser-explored languages. It also aims to explore effective pedagogical approaches facilitating HL acquisition and maintenance. It endeavors to empower HL communities by shedding light on tested strategies of language maintenance and revitalization, and by examining the impact of societies' language policies on HLs. It is the goal of the editors to encourage interdisciplinary collaboration by bringing together scholars from linguistics, education, sociology, anthropology, and related fields to exchange ideas and perspectives on HL acquisition.
