Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

In cities and settlements across the world, calls for equitable community development policy are unparalleled. The forces of globalization, neoliberalism, and accompanying austerity measures pose new challenges to practitioners engaged in community development and advocacy work. This special issue on “Community Development for Equity and Empowerment” examines strategies to navigate these challenges across a number of domains. Manuscripts are invited that examine issues related to: affordable housing, access to education, police accountability, social welfare, environmental justice, public participation, social movements, and other areas of community development.

Manuscripts that are empirical, theoretical, comparative, advocacy oriented and focused on perspectives of excluded groups and the dispossessed are encouraged. In an effort to attract the broadest possible scope of viewpoints and facilitate submissions from a diverse group of scholars, article processing charges are waived for this special issue of Societies.

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
