Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Due to the commitment made by several nations to reduce global warming through the Paris Agreement in 2015, there is a need to produce more food sustainably. This Special Issue will highlight new research on sustainable agriculture models and hotspot reduction. We accept submissions on remote sensing applications for environmental monitoring; quantification of heat stations in agricultural areas and biomes, among others; sustainable food systems; and dynamics of carbon emission in agricultural areas. Submissions focused on sustainable agriculture and climate change are also encouraged.
