Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

E-waste (electronic waste), also known as waste electrical and electronic equipment (WEEE), has become one of the fastest growing waste streams worldwide. The e-waste problem has attracted attention from many countries and regions of the world. Thus, it is of strategic significance for policymakers and practitioners to find solutions capable of overcoming the e-waste barriers and challenges, achieving sustainable e-waste management.

This Special Issue intends to draw attention to the need for the addressal of e-waste management problems from diverse perspectives. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- E-waste management policies and initiatives;
- Technologies and innovations in e-waste recycling, recovery, and treatment;
- Strategies and methods in e-waste collection, reduction, and recycling;
- Strategic/operational planning and decision making in the e-waste recycling industry;
- Economic, environmental, and health impacts of e-waste;
- Circular economy, low-carbon development, and zero-waste cities;
- E-waste management in the digital age
