Message from the Guest Editors

The relationship between humans and the indoor built environment is a critical issue in the building science domain, and the quality of indoor environments has become more important topic than ever, due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. The purpose of this Special Issue is to provide the latest research findings on comprehensive relationships in human–building integration, regarding thermal comfort, lighting comfort, physiological signals, occupant's behavior, productivity, perceived air quality, indoor environmental quality, and human sensing technology. This Special Issue will accept original research papers based on field experiments/surveys, lab experiments, statistical analysis, and simulation/modeling, as well as case studies or review papers.
