Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

We are happy to invite you to the SISVet 2018 Congress that is the biggest conference in Italy dedicated to veterinary science, which has been held for over 72 years. The conference will be held 20–22 June in Torino. The conference will include the participation of the following societoes: SOFIVET, SICV, SIRA, AIPVET, ARNA, ANIV, RNIV, and the National Network of Veterinary Immunology.

We are particularly interested in articles related to the society involved and to the central theme of the convention, which will be antimicrobial resistance in veterinary implications, from pharmacological, infectious, clinical, zootechnical, pathological, and public health aspects. Naturally, all topics related to veterinary sciences are welcome. The novelty of this year is represented by the ARNA that will propose for its scientific session the theme: "Milk in the Diet of the Future".

On behalf of the organizing committee, we welcome your contribution.
