Application of Antioxidants and Bioactive Compounds in Agricultural Products

Message from the Guest Editors

The role of antioxidants and bioactive compounds in the agri-food sector has gained significant attention due to their crucial role in enhancing the quality and functionality of agri-food products. This Special Issue aims to publish high-quality articles and reviews exploring the latest advancements, innovative applications, and potential benefits of antioxidants and bioactive compounds in the agri-food sector. For such aims, principal topics may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The development of functional agri-food products and nutraceuticals enriched with antioxidants and bioactive compounds.
- Investigating the effectiveness of naturally derived antioxidants.
- Bioavailability of bioactive compounds in agri-food products.
- Strategies to enhance antioxidant stability: microencapsulation and nanoencapsulation.
- Investigations into the mechanisms of action of antioxidants and bioactive compounds for protecting against oxidative stress.
- Innovative methods for extracting these compounds from natural sources.
- Exploring the sustainability aspects of utilizing natural antioxidants and bioactive compounds.
