Message from the Collection Editor

This Topical Collection will address the latest developments in the field of reactive species, from their formation and physicochemical properties to their biological activity and analysis. A particular focus will reside on reactive species and health, an issue becoming increasingly important in modern societies affected by considerable demographic changes.

Topics covered in this collection include, among others:

Reactive oxygen species

Reactive nitrogen species

Reactive sulfur species

Formation of reactive species in biology

Detection and analysis of reactive species

Cellular redox signalling

Cell damage and repair

Environmental pollution and reactive species

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

It has been recognized in medical sciences that in order to prevent adverse effects of "oxidative stress" a balance exists between prooxidants and antioxidants in living systems. Imbalances are found in a variety of diseases and chronic health situations. Our journal Antioxidants serves as an authoritative source of information on current topics of research in the area of oxidative stress and antioxidant defense systems. The future is bright for antioxidant research and since 2012, Antioxidants has become a key forum for researchers to bring their findings to the forefront.
