Message from the Guest Editors

Environment health research delivers research results and innovation in various domains. This includes the generation of harmonized data for risk assessment, the advancement of technologies, contributions towards informed decision-making, and the production of knowledge applicable in academia, the health sector, policymaking, and public health by protecting citizens' health and well-being. Taking all of these into consideration, we encourage submissions related to the following topics:

- Research across different disciplinary domains studying the relationship between environmental health, entrepreneurship, innovation, and well-being or sustainability;
- Public health and new, innovative, and sustainable solutions that might improve the population's well-being;
- Relationships between different kinds of indoor air pollutants and their effects on human health;
- Methodologies and/or frameworks that cross the domains of environmental health and new and innovative solutions following the SDGs.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), Inspec, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Engineering, Multidisciplinary) / CiteScore - Q1 (General Engineering)
