Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue, we ask the following questions: What is the role of contemporary art in the re/narrativisation of trauma? When it comes to remediating the past, what can art offer that non-artistic work can not? How do we heal from collective hurt when the past is always present? Is telling the trauma story always necessary?

Manuscripts submitted to this Special Issue can be theoretical or applied. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The ethics and aesthetics of trauma, including its representational limits.
- The multimodal nature of visual art storytelling and its potential outcomes and contributions to individuals/societies experiencing trauma.
- The many roles that narrative plays in redressing trauma.
- The potency, currency, and public resonance of mythology and folklore in trauma tales.
- The role of visual storytelling in the critical processing of trauma, beyond art therapy principles.
- The role of trauma-informed practice and trauma-informed care in the writing, editing, and reading of contemporary trauma fictions and non-fictions.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Arts welcomes scholarly contributions that address fundamental issues in the arts, broadly conceived, from any meaningful perspective—theoretical, historical, interdisciplinary, and global. Submissions are expeditiously and rigorously reviewed by peers, in order to insure the highest scholarly standards. Because Arts is an online journal, articles reach their desired audiences more quickly and reliably than its print media peers. The future is digital, and Arts combines the stringent scholarly standards of traditional journals with the easy accessibility afforded by digitalization.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within ESCI (Web of Science), and other databases.

Rapid Publication: manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 35.5 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 6.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2024).
