

Psychosocial Care and Support in Dementia

Guest Editors:

Dr. Sara Lauren Bartels

1. Department of Psychiatry and Neuropsychology and Alzheimer
Centrum Limburg, Maastricht
University, 6229 ET Maastricht,
The Netherlands

2. Department of Clinical
Neuroscience, Karolinska
Institutet, 171 77 Solna, Sweden

Dr. Esther Loseto-Gerritzen

Institute of Mental Health,
Institute of Mental Health,
University of Nottingham,
Nottingham NG7 2RD, UK

Message from the Guest Editors

In recent years, the research field of psychosocial care and support for dementia has rapidly expanded. There is growing interest in aspects such as (1) social health and inclusion; (2) resilience and coping; (3) technology use and digital interventions; (4) inequity and inequality in access to care and support; and (5) novel methodological approaches. Given the importance of these topics, more studies are being conducted in this area. This Special Issue focuses on the development, evaluation, and/or implementation of psychosocial care and support in dementia to advance research, practice, and policy. We welcome reviews and original research articles focusing on these topics targeting any dementia types, stages, and care settings. For more information, please visit the special issue: Psychosocial Care and Support in Dementia

Deadline for manuscript
submissions:

15 April 2025

