Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

COVID-19 had a massive impact on the supply chain, creating a great deal of instability. To solve the challenges associated with this instability, academia needs to contribute to identifying possible solutions through authentic research. The development of new or modified ways to resolve the supply chain network is the top priority for many businesses.

This Special Issue aims to collect state-of-the-art research work and interesting results surrounding topics including but not limited to: post-COVID-19 supply chain networks, international supply chain, domestic supply chain, supply chain disruptions, supply chain resilience, supply chain policy, and circular economy. Any kind of modified or new framework for supply chain networks is welcome to add more value to eliminate supply chain bottlenecks.

In this Special Issue, original research papers and comprehensive review papers are both welcomed. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Kind regards,

Dr. Mohammad Shamsuddoha
