Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In this Special Issue dedicated to the screening and diagnostics of prostate cancer various controversies, several studies are presented which illustrate the ongoing improvement and discussion in the field worldwide. The technical progress in imaging with MRI, and PSMA-PET scanning, as well as the new serum and urinary assays, add a number of elements to the process of screening and diagnostic procedures. Multifactorial risk evaluation appears to be basic to make decisions by patients and their physicians. Profs Chris Bangma and Axel Semjonow highlight this dynamic evaluation of thoughts between specialists on early prostate cancer.
