Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Pediatric bowel diseases include a broad spectrum of inborn and acquired disorders with a high impact on quality of life.

Treatment guidelines for pediatric bowel diseases are often missing due to limited evidence. This Special Issue intends to give the reader an update on pediatric bowel disorders with a special focus on surgical and non-surgical treatment options as well as the transition period from childhood to adulthood.

Clinical, basic science, and translational studies related to pediatric bowel diseases are welcome.

What kind of papers we are soliciting: Studies addressing pathophysiology, epidemiology, and/or treatment (including confirmation or refutation of conventional therapies, novel treatments, and treatment guidelines) are highly appreciated.
