Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The surgical management of gynecologic malignancies is the backbone of the specialty of gynecologic oncology. Where radicality of treatment was once one of the hallmarks of the specialty, more nuanced approaches now abound. These strategies/techniques maintain or improve outcomes while minimizing toxicity and enhancing the surgical experience.

This Special Issue will feature original research, reviews, and novel case reports that move the knowledge base forward towards, realizing better outcomes in the management of gynecologic malignancy. This includes new surgical approaches, pre-operative optimization, peri-operative innovations to enhance surgical recovery, de-escalation strategies, evaluations of new technology in the surgical setting, and implementation of novel service delivery models to enable surgical planning.
