Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Implant rehabilitation is a clinical practice in continuous evolution, always reducing the surgical impact, rehabilitating a single element, portions of or entire dental arches.

For long-term success, maintenance has been proven to play a fundamental role in follow-ups.

Therefore, the objective of this Special Issue is to focus on all minimally invasive protocols to reduce the incidence of mucositis and peri-implantitis through a proactive approach, increasingly reducing the chemical pharmacological exposure to our patients, and to keep all prosthetic products in zirconia or lithium disilicate to avoid chipping of the closing margin and a subsequent accumulation of plaque which can trigger a degenerative inflammatory process.

Clinical trials, reviews, and case reports will be welcome, highlighting the use of mini-invasive instrumentation, the use of minimally invasive powders, laser therapy, ozone therapy, natural gels, minimally invasive surgical techniques, and ortho-prosthetic patients.
