Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The development of tissues involves the direction of specific programs for gene expression among distinct cell types. Those programs are often established in a heritable state by virtue of epigenetic mechanisms and corresponding pathways of cellular memory. Thus, the broad synchronization in patterns of gene expression ultimately dictates cellular consequences. Aberrations in these epigenetic mechanisms are known to be associated with a range of diseases. This correlation between epigenetic aberrations and disease is the focus of this Special Issue of Diseases. For this issue, we invite papers related to the molecular, cellular, and clinical significance of epigenetic aberrations as well as treatments based on the modulation of epigenetic mechanisms in the clinical management of disease.

Diseases is an international, peer-reviewed, open access, multidisciplinary journal that focuses on the latest outstanding research concerning diseases and conditions. Research articles, reviews, and other contents are released on the Internet immediately after acceptance. This journal aims to cover international conferences and symposia as new targets.

Diseases is increasingly gaining acceptance and visibility within scholars, and after only a few years of life, Diseases is now also covering specific topics with dedicated special issues. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, ESCI (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q2 (Medicine, Research and Experimental)
