Message from the Guest Editors

This current Special Issue thus aims to provide a platform for international scholars to share their works related to teacher education and, therefore, draw implications for policy formulations and the feasibility of practices in teacher education around the world.

Possible topics include (but are not limited to) the following:

- National, institutional, and pedagogical responses to the pandemic in teacher education policies;
- Novel learning and teaching approaches for teacher education (preservice, induction, and in-service);
- Innovations directed at teacher preparation and professional learning;
- Learning-teaching scenarios in teacher education during the COVID-19 pandemic: challenges and opportunities;
- The roles and preparedness of teacher educators/teacher education institutions to support teacher professional development during the pandemic;
- Transition from teacher education institutions to workplaces in schools.
