Message from the Guest Editors

The purpose of this Special Issue is to provide a platform for scholars working in mathematics teacher education to discuss critical perspectives on this area.

Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Working with prospective and/or practicing mathematics teachers and issues of minoritization: e.g., gender and gender identity, ethnicity, social class, disability, sexual orientation.
- Reporting on programmes about the engagement of prospective and/or practicing mathematics teachers with concepts, such as equity, social justice, critical mathematics education, Indigenous education, culturally responsive pedagogy, ethnomathematics, and so on.
- School-based approaches involving mathematics teachers in addressing the learning needs of children with diverse backgrounds.
- Theory practice dilemmas in aiming for critical perspectives in/for mathematics teacher education.
- Essays, systematic reviews, meta-synthesis, or meta-analysis papers addressing critical issues in mathematics teacher education.

We look forward to your contributions.
