Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Nuts are characterized by the dual orientation of nutrition and flavor, and are one of the nutritional and healthy foods promoted by the WHO and many countries of the world. With the coming of the post-pandemic era, more concerns regarding the nutrition and health of nuts are taken into consideration. In addition, the exploration of its nutritional function, flavor analysis and development of new products have become research hotspots. Therefore, it is of great scientific significance and social practical value to conquer the key technologies for processing nuts and their derived products and analyze their nutritional and flavor codes.
