Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue aims to consider recent developments concerning the science and technology of milk and dairy products, with an impact on product development considering the most current drivers within the dairy sector. This Special Issue has a broad range of topics, and we welcome you to contribute submissions (including original research and current review articles) addressing milk or milk product composition and the effects of genetic factors as well as technology on the nutritional/functional properties of dairy products, energy consumption and sustainability. We are also interested in papers investigating new milk sources, the development of new products with nutritional added-value products and consumers acceptance. Further, we welcome recent developments in the detection of bioactive compounds naturally present in traditional products (mainly traditional cheeses) as natural elements contributing nutritional value.
