Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

A Special Issue is being planned to be published in Foods that focuses on the bioactivities of food phytochemicals. This Special Issue will offer a general review of current knowledge about the existence of phytochemicals in foods and their function in the treatment or prevention of various diseases. The aim of this Special Issue is to showcase original research articles and reviews describing current findings on therapeutically promising food bioactive compounds. We invite authors to submit articles that explore different aspects of the bioactivities of bioactive compounds in foods.

Potential topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Bioactive potential of food components;
- Mechanism of action of bioactive compounds;
- Novel methods to identify the role of bioactive compounds in foods;
- Food components in the regulation of pro- and anti-inflammatory pathways;
- Food bioactive compounds in antimicrobial activities and food control;
- Food bioactive compounds as therapeutic agents in health.

We look forward to receiving your submission.
