Message from the Guest Editor

The current COVID-19 pandemic has created an urgent need for alternative technology for livestock and forest encroachment issues for meat/protein sources. This Special Issue highlights the importance of in vitro meat which will be an alternative solution. The need of the hour is solving human health issues stemming from emerging infectious diseases, as well as forest encroachment for the sake of livestock expansion, animal welfare, and global demand for animal meat. Despite efforts linked to animal livestock production, the global burden is increased without satisfying the global meat demands. Thus, in vitro meat is a promising technological solution which helps in animal welfare, reduction in emerging infectious diseases, proper utilization of land and other available resources, and environmental benefits.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges \(APC\) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE \(Web of Science\), PubMed, PMC, FSTA, AGRIS, PubAg, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Food Science and Technology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Health Professions (miscellaneous))
