Identity in Flux: Intercultural Conflict and the Dynamics of Belonging

Message from the Guest Editors

This call welcomes interdisciplinary research from fields such as social psychology, social anthropology, sociolinguistics, education, and migration studies. Submissions may address topics including the following:

- The role of intercultural conflict in shaping individual and collective identities;
- The ideological and social implications of identity negotiation in multicultural settings marked by conflict;
- The influence of transcultural dynamics and conflict management on notions of belonging and self-perception;
- Methodologies and frameworks for studying identity, belonging, and intercultural conflict;
- Case studies highlighting how identities are expressed, contested, and transformed in regions or groups experiencing ongoing intercultural conflict;
- The impact of power dynamics and cultural ideologies in escalating or resolving intercultural conflict;
- Strategies for fostering positive identity negotiation and conflict resolution in diverse cultural settings.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
