Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues.

This Special Issue focuses on 1) the association between nutrition disorders and health, functioning, quality of life, and socio-economic burden in older adults in all settings (e.g., hospital, institutional, and community); 2) appropriate methods to screen and assess nutrition disorders; and 3) the effectiveness and efficiency of nutritional interventions for nutritional disorders, with or without other interventions (e.g., rehabilitation therapy, medication, social support). Issues related to sarcopenia, sarcopenic obesity, cachexia, and frailty in the context of nutrition are also welcome.
