Improving the Health and Well-Being of Groups of Workers Experiencing Work Disparities

Message from the Guest Editor

We are inviting papers that will focus on groups of workers that experience work disparities. The aim of this paper is to publish research that leads to system transformations needed to improve health and wellbeing for groups of workers that experience work and health disparities, inequalities, and inequities. This Special Issue invites research and conceptual papers. More information can be found at the website of the special issue via the link below.
