Islamic Finance Performance during Pandemic and Future Agenda

Message from the Guest Editors

COVID-19 has interrupted the entire financial landscape, with everyone from academics to policymakers attempting to mitigate the economic impact whilst upholding a solid and sustainable financial system. Even though the nature of the ongoing crisis differs from that of 2008, Islamic finance's optimism will be critical in re-establishing the Islamic economy as a substitute mechanism to conventional finance. Digital disruption, including Islamic Fintech, allows Islamic banking to compete and prosper on an equitable basis. At the individual and corporate levels, Islamic banking can help resolve challenges brought by economic upheavals. Social instruments of Islamic finance such as qardh-al-hasan, zakat, sukuk, and waqf are attractive choices for the Islamic banking system to utilize during and after this pandemic. These instruments assist vulnerable communities, SMEs, and corporate entities by providing immediate cash transfers and providing healthcare coverage and educational resources (Haider et al., 2020). Islamic finance is founded on the principles of social equality and the equitable distribution of wealth, ...

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I'm thrilled to take the leadership reins of the International Journal of Financial Studies and welcome the opportunity to make it one of the vanguard open-source scientific journals in our field. I eagerly look forward to working with the journal editorial team in building upon the quality instilled by my predecessor to develop the title further and broaden the appeal to other new finance research areas while keeping our core a high-quality finance journal that serves and highly values the scientific community, readers and authors alike. IJFS aims to publish high-quality manuscripts in both theoretical and empirical finance spanning all the major research areas in the field. It aims to provide an outlet for original finance scholarly research that promotes interaction among finance scholars and practitioners and bridges the divide that can exist between them.
