Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Cancer nanomedicine has introduced new possibilities in cancer diagnostics and therapies, aiming to overcome the disadvantages of conventional diagnostic and therapy approaches. Nevertheless, despite the significant interest in and attractive possibilities of nanotechnologies, there are still challenges in its clinical translation. We expect this Special Issue to cover strategies to realise the unlimited promise of nanomedicine for the detection, diagnosis and efficient treatment of cancer.

Please note that the Special Issue is focused on molecular research; therefore, pure clinical research will not be accepted, but clinical submissions on biomolecular experiments are welcomed.

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Inorganic Chemistry)
