Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

It is a great pleasure for me to share this Special Issue with you.

Raman spectroscopy is an essential technique for physicists, chemists, biologists, and other scientists. Molecular biology studies how molecules interact with each other in living organisms to perform the functions of life, that is, it takes into consideration the molecular basis of biological activity. In this regard, Raman spectroscopy is a non-destructive technique that provides detailed information on chemical structure, phases, and polymorphism, crystallinity, and molecular interactions.

The aim of this Special Issue titled “Applications of Raman Spectroscopy in Molecular Biology” represents an opportunity to present a collection of articles on the most significant results of research in Molecular Biology.
