Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Membrane proteins are present in all cells and are essential for their homeostasis and response to environmental changes. Membrane proteins are involved in a vast variety of dynamic cellular processes such as ionic and molecular transport, electron transport, signal transduction, enzymatic reactions, and intercellular communication. The main two challenges in determining membrane protein structures is in optimizing experimental conditions for their extraction/purification from cell membranes and their reconstitution in cell-like membranes. As a result of these challenging problems, membrane protein studies have become a flourishing research field in molecular biophysics. Visualizing the dynamic nature of membrane proteins and their interconnections in the cell is a key element in understanding the complex, yet efficient, molecular machinery of life.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Organic Chemistry)
