Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue of the Journal of Clinical Medicine focuses on the targeted diagnosis of arrhythmias and sudden cardiac death, highlighting recent advances in the field. It covers a wide range of topics, including novel imaging techniques, non-invasive electrophysiology testing, and advanced genetic analysis. These cutting-edge approaches provide new insights into the pathophysiology of arrhythmias, facilitating personalized diagnosis and treatment. The use of artificial intelligence and machine learning in arrhythmia diagnosis and risk stratification, improving accuracy and efficiency, will also be discussed.

This Special Issue will be an invaluable resource for cardiologists, electrophysiologists, and researchers involved in the diagnosis and management of arrhythmias and sudden cardiac death, providing a comprehensive overview of the latest developments and trends in arrhythmia diagnosis, as well as practical guidance for clinicians.
