Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Hypertension is related to vascular cognitive impairment and vascular dementia as well as Alzheimer's disease dementia, with many studies supporting the association between mid-life hypertension and cognition; however, less is known about the relationships with late-life hypertension, especially with Alzheimer's disease dementia. Further study is needed on the underlying pathological mechanisms that link hypertension to cognitive impairment due to Alzheimer's disease in older adults; thus, we invite the submission of innovative studies exploring the links between late-life hypertension and cognition in older adults.
