Message from the Guest Editors

The value of using non-invasive imaging methods such as ultrasound and other imaging tools is essential for diagnostics in obstetrics and gynecology.

Modern imaging methods play an increasingly important role in daily diagnostics. New handheld devices are also increasingly being used in the field of gynecology and obstetrics, and so the training and further education of these new methods offers new approaches for patient diagnostics. However, evidence still has to be delivered concerning their value in daily clinical practice.

The use of applications (apps) is also growing among patients and physicians to assist with medical care and patient interaction.

For this Special Issue, submissions exploring “Imaging applications in Obstetrics and Gynecology” are invited.
