Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Interstitial lung diseases (ILDs) have diverse differential diagnoses, including drug-induced, infection, and connective tissue disease (CTD) related ILDs. Furthermore, acute exacerbation (AE) is a critical issue for ILDs. This issue focuses on the recent advances in the multidisciplinary aspects of ILDs.

In this Special Issue, we welcome authors to submit papers on the clinical advance of ILDs in terms of diagnosis (i.e., radiology, bronchoalveolar lavage fluid), immunopathogenesis of pulmonary fibrosis, clinical approach to ILDs, pathology, and treatment (effect of antifibrotic agents). We also welcome sarcoidosis, hypersensitivity pneumonitis, and rare and orphan interstitial lung diseases.

Keywords: interstitial pneumonia; diagnosis; virus infection; collagen vascular disease-related interstitial pneumonia; differential diagnosis; lung sounds
