Message from the Guest Editors

Modern medicine faces numerous challenges, including the tendency to swing between overtreatment and undertreatment. The challenge is striking the right balance between adequate treatment and avoiding harm. Thanks to innovations in technology and progress in our understanding of biology, personalized medicine offers a solution to this challenge by delivering the right therapy at the right time to the right patient. Personalized medicine takes into account individual differences in people's characteristics to create a unique and effective treatment plan. This approach allows for more precise and targeted therapy, reducing the risk of overtreatment or undertreatment and improving patient outcomes.

This Special Issue of the Journal of Personalized Medicine is open to all minimally invasive surgical procedures for the treatment of either benign or malignant genitourinary diseases.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Journal of Personalized Medicine (JPM; ISSN 2075-4426) is an international, open access journal aimed at bringing all aspects of personalized medicine to one platform. JPM publishes cutting edge, innovative preclinical and translational scientific research and technologies related to personalized medicine (e.g., precision medicine, pharmacogenomics/proteomics, systems biology, ‘omics association analysis). JPM is covered in Scopus, the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE), PubMed, PMC, Embase, and other databases.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Medicine, General and Internal) / CiteScore - Q2 (Medicine (miscellaneous))
