Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The integration of different mechanisms of production and evolution of endocrine and metabolic diseases with modern theories of correct nutrition, nutrigenomics and nanoparticles can lead to the understanding of various cardiovascular, endocrine and metabolic pathologies. This Special Issue of the Journal of Personalized Medicine aims to highlight the current state of the science and showcase some of the latest findings in the field of endocrine and metabolic diseases. The scientific advances in the field of nutrition, nutrigenomics and nanoparticles will continue to pave the path towards personalized nutrition for optimal health and wellness. Original articles and reviews highlighting the mechanism and treatment for endocrine and metabolic diseases as well as personalized medicine are welcome.
