New Insights into Personalized Surgical Oncology

Message from the Guest Editor

In a significant number of cancer treatment cases, surgery remains the cornerstone for achieving long-term survival. At the same time, the concept of personalized medicine has evolved over the last decade, thereby increasing the chances of improving long-term outcomes. In this Special Issue, entitled "New Insights into Personalized Surgical Oncology", we invite clinical researchers and scientists to contribute relevant clinical and basic research on cancer. Research on surgical techniques, improvements in clinical practice, the application of cutting-edge technologies, and personalized perioperative management also fall within the scope of this Special Issue. Original articles and review papers (systematic and narrative approaches) are also welcome. Papers that meet the criteria of the peer review process will be accepted for publication. We hope that this Special Issue will enrich our understanding of surgical oncology and further improve the quality of surgical care for cancer patients.
