Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue aims to collect theoretical, review, and empirical concepts that will assist financial markets, financial institutions, and business sustainability in terms of operations and supply chain issues in the post-COVID era. One of the anticipated results of this call is to assist practitioners and academics within the financial markets and organisational operational issues in reviewing the lessons learnt from the COVID-19-related events to avoid encountering a similar catastrophic situation in the future. In addition, this Special Issue seeks fresh perspectives on secure ways for current financial markets, institutions, and organisations to adapt to the newly adjusted global business framework.
