Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue focuses on the broad topic of “Business Risks in Small- and Medium-sized Enterprises” and includes novel research pertaining to entrepreneurship around the world, strategic management, as well as assessments of internal and external organizational environments and how they interact with stakeholders. Theoretical and empirical articles pertaining to the following, and related topics are welcome: the application of entrepreneurial orientation around the world; the COVID-19 pandemic outbreak fallouts; industry 4.0 concept regarding robotics, digitization and artificial intelligence; international labor market issues within the new emerging jobs and job displacement issue; international business development regarding the imposed economic sanctions resulting from the Russian–Ukrainian conflict; etc.

We encourage the submission of contributions focusing on empirical and non-empirical methods in today’s complex world; we also encourage novel measures dealing with global entrepreneurship and/or strategic management, as well as all types of risk and international management.
