Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue focuses on the broad topic of “Firms’ Behavior, Productivity, and Economics of Innovation” and includes research methods and techniques for modeling economic behavior, business modeling in general, evaluating the innovation process, productivity forecasts, and assessing the impact of risk on economic behavior and innovation.

The goal of this Special Issue is to promote new ideas, conceptual approaches, models, methods, as well as new quantitative tools in behavioral economics, in financial economics, in innovation management, in the development of business models, and in economic and financial modeling in general. Any new approaches that complement, expand on, and clarify existing concepts and points of view in the framework of quantitative and conceptual analysis are encouraged.

Researchers and practitioners working on new ideas, models, and methods, as well as who can provide empirical reviews and research on the above topics, are invited to submit their papers to this Special Issue.

an Open Access Journal by MDPI
