Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In this Special Issue we propose for the journal Languages, which proceeds from the 6th ESTIDIA Conference at Alicante University (June 2022), we invite contributions that explore issues, concerns, and dilemmas in the translation of the Other from various scholarly perspectives. Translation studies are an interdisciplinary field that is informed mostly by linguistics, literature, and psychoanalysis. Similarly, studies on Otherness tend to be interdisciplinary, being enriched mostly by discussions from critical discourse analysis, rhetoric, anthropology, and philosophy. Thus, this Special Issue aims to bring together original and innovative studies that articulate theories and practices from interdisciplinary approaches in order to understand how Otherness travels and is translated into other languages and contexts...
