Special Issue

Phonetic and Phonological Complexity in Romance Languages

Message from the Guest Editors

We are guest editing a special volume of Languages to be entitled "Phonetic and Phonological Complexity in Romance Languages". As the subject line suggests, we are writing to inquire whether you would be interested in contributing an original research paper pertaining to the topic indicated by the title. As indicated in the title of the volume, we are especially interested in contributions that highlight issues of complexity - which may be interpreted as phenomena that are indeed complex, or phenomena that might seem complex but that may actually turn out to be quite straight-forward when analyzed in a particular way. These may be addressed from theoretical and/or experimental perspectives.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Languages (ISSN 2226-471X) is now in its eighth year since its inception in 2015. It is an Open Access journal which seeks to stimulate debates on key issues in languages and linguistics. We welcome papers at the cutting edge of different fields, ranging from applied linguistics to descriptive and theoretical linguistics.
Submissions may consist of research articles and critical reviews as well as proposals for Special Issues where multi-disciplinary approaches and different perspectives on current issues are explored. We invite you to consider Languages as a forum for sharing your work.
