Variation and Change in Language Norm

Message from the Guest Editors

It is our pleasure to announce a call for papers on the Issue of variation and change in language norm. By "variation" we mean geographical, sociocultural, historical, functional, or stylistic diversity; "change" refers to the evolution by adding, transforming, or losing features; "language" covers all the linguistic varieties regardless of their degree of codification and standardization in general; and "norm" includes both objective implicit social habits and prescriptive explicit codifications. All theoretical and methodological frames are welcome. Comparative analyses (of how different theoretical or methodological approaches address variation or change, comparative analyses of languages, etc.) will be especially appreciated.

Message from the Editorial Board

Languages (ISSN 2226-471X) is now in its eighth year since its inception in 2015. It is an Open Access journal which seeks to stimulate debates on key issues in languages and linguistics. We welcome papers at the cutting edge of different fields, ranging from applied linguistics to descriptive and theoretical linguistics. Submissions may consist of research articles and critical reviews as well as proposals for Special Issues where multi-disciplinary approaches and different perspectives on current issues are explored. We invite you to consider Languages as a forum for sharing your work.
