This Special Issue intends to progress contemporary dialogues on gender, crime, criminalisation, victimisation, criminal justice and law. We welcome contributions that expand understandings of gender in these areas including research, theoretical, policy and practice-based articles. More specifically contributions in the following areas are sought:

1. The gendered nature of offending and criminalisation
2. The gendered nature of victimisation
3. Gendered experiences of criminal justice
4. Gendered perspectives in criminal law, criminal justice policy and practice
5. Intersections between gender and other social statuses in experiences of offending, criminalisation, victimisation and criminal justice.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
