

Special Issue

International Law as a Driver of Internet Governance

Message from the Guest Editor

Internet governance is embedded into international legal regimes. The integrity of the Internet depends on compliance with generally acknowledged legal principles and concepts. New challenges, such as cybersecurity and cyber stability, require the respective implementation of appropriate rules. The participation of a large variety of actors in Internet matters also necessitates the realization of a multistakeholder model for procedural and substantive matters. The aim of the Special Issue consists in academic assessments of the relations between different international legal principles and Internet governance debates. Relevant areas of research may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- International law and internet integrity
- International legal concepts as foundation for Internet governance
- Cybersecurity as a new Internet challenge
- Cyber stability as an objective of Internet governance
- Chances and challenges of multistakeholderism
- Models of multistakeholder involvement
- Due diligence in the context of Internet governance
- Digital cooperation as new governance model
- Sovereignty and responsibility in Internet governance

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Laws is an international, open access journal featuring rigorous scholarship on critical developments in governance, courts, agencies, and social order. Analysis and synthesis, theory and practice, and empirical and doctrinal work have appeared in the journal; contributions that bridge these traditional boundaries are particularly welcome. The social sciences and humanities generate insights both from and for the legal system. While theory grounds Laws in a timeless dialogue shaped by traditions of inquiry, legal practice ensures that scholars are addressing pressing problems. Both normative and positive scholarship can aid policymakers, judges, and agency officials. Laws brings together the work of theorists and practitioners, and a diverse range of empirical researchers, to promote the progress of foundational legal norms.
