Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

It is a pleasure for me to invite you to support this project aiming to publish a Special Issue on the State of the Art of Urological Dysfunction. We will collect a series of topics resuming the most recent data about knowledge on the pathophysiology and therapy of urological dysfunctions. Most urological pathologies have a dysfunctional origin; the depth of knowledge on the pathophysiology that underlies them has today allowed the availability of excellent therapeutical strategies. On the other hand, in the uro-oncological field, surgery is often characterized by important functional changes that often result in complications, decreasing quality of life. In this work, we will be able to set up an update on the current pathophysiological knowledge of urological dysfunctions, both primary and consequent to surgical acts, and their treatment aspects.
